

Justice for Unilever tea workers!

To Mr. Paul Polman, CEO Unilever

Dear Mr. Polman

Your website claims that “Unilever people are doing jobs that contribute to the environment and society.” Yet over 700 workers at the Khanewal Lipton factory who make one of your “billion-dollar brands” are not “Unilever people” – they are disposable workers hired through labour hire agencies, with no employment security and inferior wages and benefits though many have worked continuously for decades. Make the Khanewal workers permanent through direct negotiations with the National Federation of Food, Beverage and Tobacco Workers of Pakistan!

Yours sincerely,
